

March 12, 2019 10:00 AM – 11:00 AM

Presented by Alan Becker PhD, MPH

Environmental Toxicology Training for African American Residents and Community Leaders Using Participatory-Based Methods

Dr. Alan Becker a public health toxicologist specializing in environmental health. Dr. Becker is an associate professor of environmental and occupational health at Florida A&M University with research interest in environmental health, pesticide exposure, occupational toxicology, and chemical preparedness. Since 2008 Dr. Becker has served as a mentor to developing public health researchers serving as an advisor to several master's projects at Florida A&M. Beyond his mentorship roles Dr. Becker is a prominent researcher in his field regularly publishing and presenting his work at lectures and conferences.