Now I would like to ask you a few questions about the air conditioning in your home. Air conditioning is defined as the cooling of air by a refrigeration unit. This definition excludes evaporative coolers, fans, or blowers that are not connected to a refrigeration unit. A “room unit” is an individual air conditioner which is installed in a window or an outside wall and is generally intended to cool one room. A “central system” is a central installation which air-conditions the entire housing unit. In an apartment building, a central system may cool all apartments in the building, each apartment may have its own central system, or there may be several systems that provide central air conditioning for a group of apartments. A central installation with individual room controls is a central air-conditioning system.
