Your health story matters,

and it could help make a difference for communities across Florida.

Florida HEALTH

The Florida Department of Health conducts the Behavioral Risk Factor Surveillance System telephone survey to learn more about Floridians' health, health behaviors, and access to care. This information helps us identify health trends, highlight areas of need, and develop programs and services designed to support the health and wellness of Floridians.

What types of questions are asked in the survey?

- Chronic Health Conditions
- Health Care Access
- Health Status
- Exercise
- Tobacco Use

How will the call appear on my phone?

If you receive a phone call from FL HEALTH asking questions about your health and health practices, take the call.
